NEW & ORIGINAL SERIAL STORY FROM THE PEN OF RIDER

HAGGARD, Author of "King Solomon's Mines." " Allan-Quartermain," "Bho," "Jess," &c., &c

The Proprietors of this Journal are pleased to announce that they have, at a very considerable outlay, made arrangements with H. Rider of the latest invention for Photographing in all Haggard—the Author of the most popular and dramatic Stories of our day-by which their Reeders will enjoy precedent perusal of a new and anpublished manuscript Story from his pen.

The Title of RIDER HAGGARD'S New Story is COLONEL QUARITOH, V.C. And the Opening Chapters appeared in THE "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS" OF SATURDAY, 21st JULY.

characters in lands remote from civilization and subjecting them to influences of the most remarkable and unprecedented nature, he has here written an English treasure story of the present day. The hero is a soldier in the British army. a wearer of the Victoria Cross, who returns home from the recent operations in the Soudan, to exchange the perils and privations of warfare in the desert for a series of sensational incidents among pleasant English landscapes, and the ultimate reward of an ancestral home brightened by the beauty of a comely bride. The plot is well contrived, there is strong individualisation in the characters; the scenes are depicted with clearness and a warm glow of local colour, while the main incidents are worked out with power. 1824 Not even in "King Solomon's Mines," when entrance is effected into the mysterions chamber, is the thrill greater than when Colonel Quaritoh uncarths the treasure, hidden away from Oromwell's soldiers, the recovery of which saves an ancient house from ruin. ing, but, with the establishment of a just Government, a forward movement immediately set in. Dacoity has not yet been al ogether extirpated, and some districts still remain in a state of lawlessness, but the work of picification is being steadily prosecuted. The Indian Government is anxious to promote emigration from the more congested districts of India to Burmahi and the policy is a good one, but the hardworking and enterprising Chinaman without Government aid bush his was in a paying country, and in Burmah i scems not improbable that he will take a place not much inferior to that which he has established for himself in the Malay peningula. Writing on this subject a short time ago we remarked on the prospect of the great increase in the Chinese population of Burmah leading to the establishment of a direct trade between that country and Hongkong and Chinn. Almost immediately afterwards a paragraph appeared in the Straits papers stating that a Chinese merchant had purchased a steamer with the purpose of running her between Rangoon and Hongkong. The venture will, we think, prove a success, and that we shall before long see a considerable traffic both in cargo and passengers. The Rangoon Times goes so far auto suggest that, as population is urgently required in our new territories, the Government might take an example from the Australians, who give all immigrants free passes from the port of FLOR DE LA ISABELLA, PRINCESSAS, En- debarkation to any station on the lines, with a liberal allowance of luggage. POLO.

On Wednesday a game of Polo was played be fore a fair number of apectators, the interest in the noble game shown by the people of Hongkong evidently being on the increase and we hope that by the time the Race Course is finished the game will be an established institution. The sides for the first game were-Collinson, Woodcock, and Pedler (Reds) v. Bethell, Grav with only three on their side the reds managed population must be wanted very badly into hold theirown; and a very fast twenty minutes' | 5 seconds. play finished in their favour by one goal to nil. In the second game the sides were—Collinson, Bethell, Woodcock, and Pedler (Reds) v. Churchill Gray, Whitehead, and Stewart. In this game there was plenty of galloping, Bethell, Gray, and Woodcock being on faster popies than the others, and all three making good runs for their derabad, 7; Poons, 3. This put the reds on their mettle, and just before time they got a goal after a good run by Woodcock and

The next game will be played this afternoon, At present there is rather a scarcity of ponies. but in time we expect many of the "Subscription Griffins" will be found more suited to polo than racing.

The Polo Club, the latest addition to our sporting institutions, meets on the ground at Causeway Bay every Wednesday and Saturday. and the visitor who goes out on those afternoons will generally see some interesting play to-reward him for his journey. Ladies, it is needless to say, are made welcome. So, far, we understand, only about four civilians have joined, but it is hoped the number will room be increased, and with a larger number of members arrangements could be made for the more economical keep of the ponies. As probably a good many residents in Hongkong have no practical acquaintance with polo, it has been suggested to us that an account of a really first class match might be found interesting and be of use in popularising the game in this colony. With this object a copy of the Bombay Gazette has been handed to us containing a report of a match played on the 6th October (the final of a tournsment) between an Indian (Hyderabad-Vikar-al-Umrah's) and a European (Poons) team, the vice at St. Peter's Seamen's Church, returning dash and style displayed by the Hyderabadis arrested, stated that he did not propose to call often called forth the unstinted applause of the ponies, and, to use a cricket phrase, were always one simply of not guilty. In a sorimmage near his goal Hanwall was crossed by one of the natives. and the ball was then played out from the Blue and Yellows goal. From here it was soon taken with a rush to the Poons end, where Blathway to scored the fourth goal. After re-starting from the centre the ball was gradually worked from the Poons end to the Paigah goal, Phayre making a very good run, which was, however, promptly out short by Ismael Khan, who took the ball rapidly down to the other end. Here the battle raged for a short while, and Blathwayte then secured the ball and had a long shot at the Poons flags. Phayre with some very bad luck failed to divert it, and the ball rolled through the posts, giving the Hyderabad men their fifth goal, just as the round closed. Score: Peona, 3: Hyderabad, 5. OUR PARIS LETTER.

PARIS, 1st October.

The publication of the Emperor of Germany's Diary will accelerate the war movement. The revelations in that document have astounded the most cool-headed. They have first of all diminished the prestige of Prince-Bismarck, which means lessened confidence, and given a twist once more to the axis of European politics. No amount of denial, or explanation can efface the impression the publication has made; no matter what trials may be ordered, or penalties threatened, opinion has made up its mind that the Diary of Frederick-III. is substantially true. At first the Chancellor declared the work to be a forgery; then he ordered a presecution for what was untrue, and hence useless, and last of all he is at white heat in point of anger. The progress, and preserve their independence. latter is presumptive of being in the wrong. Again, all sympathy is for the defunct Em-

And it has arrived, overwhelmingly and to the full-For eighteen-years the Chancellor has traded Score: Poons, 3; Hydersbad, 5. Time, 8 minutes on the laurels of the Crown Prince. It was the latter's foresight, inflexible perseverance, and heroic pluck that welded Germany into her present unity, when Bismarck faltered and, as a consequence, the old Kaiser feared to "seize the skirts of happy chance." Honour, then, to whom honour is due. Another black mark to Bismarck is his systematic plan to keep the heir apparent and his father asunder. in the coping of the restored empire. It is this moral which throws so dark a shade over the conduct of the Chancellor, and the reigning Emperor, when heir apparent, at San Remo, and causes Mackenzie's book to be so ardently looked forward to, in order to flash a more intense light on that ghastly diplomacy. He kept both sons apart from their respective fathers. Germany cannot be surprised at her proceedings henceforth being viewed with coldness and indifference by both the English and Russians. Their representatives will no more to go Varzin to take the mot d'ordre for their foreign policies. The destinies of Europe are no longer in the bands of the Chancellor. The unity of Germany now appears fragile; Bavaria has Austrian tendencies; Wurtemburg, Hanover, and perhaps Saxony, like unity apparently on other lines than vassalage to the Hohenzellern. That's where the Diary hits the Empire. Then Bismarck has made a terrible admission for his reputation. Up to the present he accused the French of provoking the 1870-71 war. He now claims the merit-which no one apparently questions of having arranged the triple alliance has received a knock-down blow by the loss of prestige and of popularity of

THE PRISON OF BOKHARA

The Times correspondent gives the following interesting account of his visit to this famous prison :- "Only the Russians know how to pronounce the 'open sesame' which discloses the Ameer's treasures and chambers of horror. By this last epithet I refer to the famous prison or sindan and dungeon of terture to which we were very fortunate in gaining admittance. THE SWORD OF DAMOGLES. At last the weary journey was over, and George's intense relief he found himself upon the platform at Boisingham. He was a pretty tough subject, but he felt that a very little more of the company of the fair Edithia would be too much for him. As it happened the stationmaster was a particular friend of his, and the astonishment of that worthy when he saw the respectable George in such company cannot be expressed in words.

"Why boar! Well I never! Is she a furriner p" he ejaculated in astonishment. "If you mean me, you dirty, wheel greasing steam boss, you," said Edithia who was by now. in fine bellicose condition. "I'm no more foreign than you are. Shut your nely mouth, can't you? or "-and she took a step towards the stout station master. Herefrested precipitately caught his heel against the threshold of the booking office and vanished backward with a "Steady, marm, steady," said George. "Save it up now, do, and as for you, don't you irritate her none of you or I won't answer for the consequences: for she's an injured woman she is, and injured women is apt to be dangerous."

As chance would have it, a fly which had brought somebody to the station was still standing there, and into it George bundled his fair charge, telling the driver to go to the Sessions

"Now, marm," he said, "listen to me: I'm going to take you to the man as has wronged you. Ho's sitting as clerk to the magistrates, Do you go up and call him your husband. Then he'll tell the policeman to take you away. Then do you sing out for justice, because when people sings out for justice everybody's bound to listen and say that you want a warrant against him suppose would you wish to do so .- W. Q." for bigamy, and show them the marriage certificate. Don't you be put down, and don't you spare him. If you don't startle him you'll never get anything out of him."

"Spare him." she snarled : "I'll make him sit up Pll have his blood. But look here, if be's put in chokey, where's the tin to come from?" mendacity, "it's the best thing that can happen for you, for if they collar him you get the property, and that's law." "Oh." she answered, "if I'd known that, he'd have been collared long ago, I can tell you." "Come." said George, seeing that they were nearing their destination. "Have one more nip just to keep your spirits up," and he produced the brandy bottle at which she took a long pull. "Now," he said, "go for him like a wild cat."

"Never you fear," she said. They dismounted from the cab and entered the court-bouse without attracting any particula notice. The court itself was prowded, for a case which had excited public interest was coming to a conclusion. The jury had given their verdic and sentence was being pronounced by Mr. de la Molle, the chairman.

Mr. Quest was sitting at his table below the bench taking some notes. ." There's your husband," he whisnered, " nov

George's part in the drama was played, and with a sigh of relief he fell back to watch i final development. He saw the fierce tall woman slip through the crowd like a snake or a panther to its prey, and some compunction touched him when he thought of the prey. He glanced at think the elderly respectable looking gentleman at the table, and reflected that he too was stalking his prev—the old Squire and the ancient house of de la Molle. Then his compunction vanished and he rejoiced to think that he would be the many generations had been interwoven. By this time the woman had fought her way through the press, bursting the remaining but tons off her ulster in so doing, and reached the bar which separated the spectators from the space reserved for the officials. On the further side of the bar was a gangway, then came the table at which Mr. Quest sat. He had been busy writing something all this time, now he rose and ait down again almost level with the hither edge of the table There she stood glaring at him, her wicked face alive with fury and notice, for the brandy she had drunk had caus diver to forget her fears. As Mr. Quest furned, his eye cangult the flash of colour from the percock feather hat. From thence it travelled to the face beneath.

He gave a gasp, and the court seemed to whire round him. . The sword had fallen indeed. "Well, Billy," whispered the hateful voice "you see I've come to look you up." With a desperate effort be recovered himself policemen was standing near him. He beckoped to him, and told him to rem ve the woman, who was drunk. The policeman advanced and touched her on the arm. "Come, you be off," he said, "von're drunk."

At that moment Mr. de la Molle ceased giving judgment "I sin't drunk," said the woman, loud enough to attract the attention of the whole court which now for the first time observed her extraordinary attire. " and I've a right to be in the public court." "Come on," said the policeman, "the Clerk says you're to go." "The Clerk says so, does he ?" she answered and do you know who the Clerk is P I'll tell you all," and she raised her voice to a scream. "he' my husband, my lawful wedded husband, and here's proof of it," and she took the folded certificate from her pocket and flung it so that it fell upon the deak of one of the magistrates. Mr. Queet sank into his chair, and there was a silence of astonishment through the court. The Source was the first to recover himself. "Silence," he said, addressing her. "Silence This cannot go on bere."

"But I want justice." she shricked. "I want inatice: I want a warrant against that man for i (Renewed sensation.) "He's left me to starve: me his lawful wife. Look here," and she tore open the pink satin tea-gown. haven't enough clothes on me; the bailiffs took Justice, your worships; I only ask for justice." you have any criminal charge to bring against-anybody there is a proper way to make it. Be silent or leave this court. But she only screamed the more for justice, and loudly detailed fragments of her woes to the eagerly listening crowd.

The policemen were ordered to remove her and there followed a most frightful scene. Bhe her dimpled chin rested on her hand, and her yellowish teeth, the half-dyed hair hanging in shricked and bit and fought in such a fashion that it took four men to drag her to the door of where he was he thought that he could see the there, and looking he shuddered.
